FROM THE PUBLISHER

Welcome to the annual Super Lawyers Business Edition, featuring the top attorneys in commercial practices across the nation and London. In this definitive guide you will find lawyers from more than 8,500 firms who have mastered their skills in business and transactional work; construction, real estate and environmental; employment; IP; and business litigation. Each attorney featured here, whether from a powerhouse firm or a solo practitioner, exhibits excellence in the practice of law and has been included on a Super Lawyers list in 2013 or 2014. You will also find lists of leading law firms of all sizes that we have ranked as the top in these business practice areas.

This year we are honored to profile the general counsels of some of the world's most recognized and trusted brands.

Teresa Wynn Roseborough of The Home Depot has kept some pretty interesting company—she was one of Al Gore's legal advisers during the nail-biting 2000 election recount and she worked on President Bill Clinton's transition team—but what excites her most these days is working for a values-driven company. "The culture here is thoroughly committed to doing the right thing, at every level," she says.

Our story on Tom Sager will teach you a thing or two about the DuPont Legal Model—an innovative way of practicing law that major companies still study. "When I became chief litigation counsel [at DuPont], I inherited thousands of cases, and the thinking was that there must be a better way," he says. "We needed more than a new vision. We needed a new playbook." So Sager wrote it.

Don H. Liu thought he had it all figured out: divinity school. But after some reflection, and a few other career-path changes, he found himself in the top seat at Xerox, where he thrilled at the chance to help revitalize a great American brand. There's not much he doesn't have his hands in—from diversity advocacy, to a $6.4 billion acquisition in 2009, to being the guy pulling duty on the company's 1-800 complaint line.

To say Anheuser-Busch InBev's Sabine Chalmers has an international dance card would be an understatement. Raised in India, the London-trained solicitor had an instrumental role in the merging of InBev—a brewing company that was the child of Belgium's Interbrew and Brazil's AmBev—and American brewing giant Anheuser-Busch. Needless to say, it took her a few passport stamps to help form the world's largest brewer in 2008.

We also included a story that examines best practices for general counsels and outside counsel. We spoke to GCs including Leslie M. Turner of The Hershey Company, John Page of Golden State Foods and Ona Alston Dosunmu of the Brookings Institution, as well as various outside counsel. What followed was a frank conversation about alternative fee structuring, the need for constant communication, and the critical importance of an outside counsel who has seen it all before.

I hope you enjoy this year's Super Lawyers Business Edition. If you have suggestions that might make this resource more valuable, please let us know.

Kindly,
