Legal Department Technology Myths: BUSTED

Myth: E-billing doesn't work internationally.

BUSTED: The impression still lingers that if a non-U.S. law firm bills you, you must get invoice via snail mail to reclaim the value added tax (VAT) or similar taxes. In fact, in the last decade there has been a tremendous overhaul of legal e-billing rules internationally. Starting with the EU, firms may now bill using the legal e-billing standard (known as the LEDES 1998BI). Hard copies of invoices are no longer required, nor are PDF copies of the bill in countries that follow the EU VAT regulations. In countries that do not allow for the LEDES 1998BI standard, law firms can still send PDFs of invoices through e-billing systems to comply with the country's law. With few exceptions, legal e-billing is now an accepted billing practice throughout the world.
